

We are like the Stars

By Sandeep Singh, student at BBS Syke Europaschule, Germany

Hello from Germany! Or maybe hello from India?

Both countries are my home. In both countries people see me as a foreigner.

Sometimes it's really hard for me answering this question: "Where are you from?"

I tell them: "I'm from this world". The feeling is a little bit strange but for me, it's the best answer.

I would say it's important to know where you are from. But the most important thing to know is that you are a human like everyone else!

I love writing poetic texts, so I decided to write my first English one. It's my own style. You could say, it's the Indian-German style.

We are like the Stars

Look up!

Do you see them?

They are so far away from each other.

They are just like us,

so different but still the same.

This world is our universe and every person is a star.

You are beautiful, sleeping in the night sky

keep that in mind.

Just like me

you belong to mankind.

It doesn't matter how bright you shine.

You only have to shine in your own wonderful way.

If you do,

every border in this world will be defeated.

Keep that in mind.
